CDI IT Solutions Announces Agreement with NetReach

Philadelphia (September 18, 2008) – CDI IT Solutions, a division of engineering and IT outsourcing leader CDI Corp. (NYSE: CDI), today announced that the company has entered into a teaming agreement with NetReach to provide a complete package of web development and content management services to the CDI customer base.

The agreement with NetReach, a full-service provider of business internet solutions, will allow CDI to offer a full range of content management services and internet application development capabilities with a feature-rich product set that is customizable to each client's needs. CDI will utilize NetReach's cmScribe product which is both a content management system and a rapid application development platform for the web, allowing for the opportunity to build complex websites and applications faster and with more flexibility.

"Technology systems are constantly changing, gaining new functionality, expanding capabilities, and becoming increasingly complex. As business requirements and data management needs continue to grow, it becomes difficult to understand how to develop and manage applications and the data within them," said Andrew Cvitanov, President of CDI IT Solutions. "The agreement with NetReach allows us to fully address our customers' requirements for a total solution – from architecture through design, implementation and support of their web requirements."

"The division between technology, design and how people work can keep projects from taking off and yielding successful results," added Will Bast, CEO of NetReach. "The combination of CDI's business intelligence, NetReach's technology and product suite, and an understanding of how people use technology will provide clients with the edge they need to thrive in today's marketplace. We are dedicated to making sure that our customers keep pace with the web – past, present and future."
